WOODWARD TREASURES 1967

Sandy Rosenbaum

Sandy,

I guess I could write pages & pages on all our little difficulties but you know how it is. You want other people to sign it too. Here it is our last year in dear old Woodward & what memories we have especially in that year from summer school. We really didn't get together till after that but sixth grade really toped it off. We've gone through everything from grading papers to graduating. We haven't gone through that yet but I'm sure it'll be a real blast! I can't believe it's really here but I guess we will when we're walking down that long isle to get our diploma. I can't think of much now because I only have 2 minutes to write but you know how slow I write —HHH!" Best of luck in all the years to come & I hope to see you at U.C. I'm sure we will because we live so far away — HA! HA! Have fun at U.C. too but everyone does so don't worry! Remember, "Work before play," or "All work & no play makes Sandy a dull girl".

Love ya!

"67" The Great Class.

To tell Woodward's fable is to tell the aspirations, actions, and achievements of its 3500 students and faculty members. Woodward is a small community in which its students live their high school years. A Big Brother introduces a terrified seventh grader to Woodward. Soon the seventh grader is immersed in the activities and studies that the school offers him. He aspires to become a vibrant part of these studies and activities. His actions during the next six years determine whether or not he will achieve his goals. Woodward presents an academic challenge to its students. An advanced English student ponders Caesar's last words: "Et tu Brute." A physics student masters Coulomb's law of electricity. A geometry student conquers the proof of the Pythagorean Theorem. The valedictorian receives overwhelming applause at graduation. Before graduation however, most Woodward students become involved in some athletic activity. The second-string quarterback completes his first touchdown pass. The basketball coach wins his two hundredth game. The baseball team wins the championship two consecutive years. A track star wins a scholarship. All these achievements occur at Woodward.

However, Woodward is not only achievement and victory. For some it is strenuous action without achievement of their aspirations. A member of sophomore choir suffers the agony of being rejected from Ensemble. A varsity halfback fumbles the ball, causing his team's defeat. An excellent and conscientious student is rejected from his first choice college. These things are also Woodward; for Woodward is life. It is people of different races and religions, but people with the common tradition that William Woodward began in 1831. It is these different people, bound by a common and stirring tradition, who aspire, act, and achieve within the halls of Woodward High School.

Never forget our great Social Science class and that test at Walnut Hills — how could you? I sure hope we can share a room next yr. and we'll probably see a lot of each other at U.C. Good luck always!

Devotion to Ideals Accentuates Spirit

Aspiration is a strong desire to accomplish something high or great. It is the intangible motivating force behind all human endeavor. It is a private force, felt within each individual's mind and soul. Everyone has experienced aspiration at one time or another; and thus, it has as many shades, tones, and aspects as there are people in the world.

Aspiration is a private, mental sensation; but it can be viewed wherever people work, live, and think together. Such a place is Woodward, where many share the same aspiration, or show their own personal kind. Classroom lights burn into the night as adults attend classes. Football fans sit in the rain, anxiously awaiting the winning touchdown. The runner works hard and long each night, wondering how he will do when the final race is run. A girl auditioning for a play studies and restudies her lines. All these facets are Woodward, where hopes and dreams are born, and aspiration determines the action of daily life.

Activities Initiate a Change of Pace

The place is Trechter Stadium. The quarterback commands, "Ready, set!" Immediately, Woodward springs into action. The line opens a gaping hole, a halfback shoots through it and breaks into open field, and the Woodward cheering section awakens with a roar. This is Woodward in action. The 9:16 bell rings and 3500 students pour into Woodward's halls from their respective classrooms. These same halls, quiet and tranquil only two minutes before, are now an outlet for the energy of Woodward's population on their way to their next class. By 3:30 hundreds of people are vigorously involved in extra-curricular activities. Key Club, French Club, Student Council, Class Council, and countless other organizations are made up of fragments of Woodward's population. Athletic activity goes on full time at Woodward. Woodward competes in P.H.S.L. football, crosscountry, swimming, wrestling, basketball, gymnastics, golf, tennis, track, and baseball. Other students involve themselves in choir, band, or orchestra. So it is that Woodward students enjoy a high school life of diversified activities.

Concentrated Effort Brings Fulfillment

Virtually all of Woodward's 3500 achieve at least some of their goals of high school life. For many, the greatest achievement is in the classroom. The thrill of being ranked in the top ten or even the top ten per cent is an achievement which many realize as a result of arduous work over a six year period. For others, the greatest achievement is in athletics. Many Woodward letter winners work many long and hard hours for their achievements. Other Woodwardites successfully attain their goals in other ways. For these people, achievement may be winning a student council election, being elected to Pep Club, or simply acquiring many worthwhile friends. For an athletic team, achievement may mean victory in the championship game or even beating a heavily favored opponent. Achievement, however, must be earned. Before achieving a goal, a student must first declare his goal and then act to realize that goal. Thus, Woodward is a place of achievement for many of its 3500 students.

Student Council

This year the main efforts of Senior High Student Council were to improve the communications between the student body and the council and to improve the relationship between the council and the faculty. Projects which were designed to improve communications included: establishing a Student Relations Committee; posting mimeographed minutes of the meetings in the classrooms and in the new Student Council display case; and placing a suggestion box in the lunchroom. Student-teacher clinics and Teachers' Appreciation Day were two of the activities used to improve the council-teacher relationship. In an attempt to make Woodward students more safety conscious, Council established a Safety Council in connection with the Greater Cincinnati Safety League. Other activities sponsored by Senior High Student Council this year were: production of The People Next Door, Homecoming, and Citizenship Week. Due to the lack of homerooms, Student Council adopted a new form of representation which provided a better cross section of the school. Sophomore and junior representatives were chosen from English classes while senior representatives were elected from Health and Survey of Family Living classes.

As in the past, Junior High Student Council served to initiate and promote activities for the junior high. Also, along with Junior High Pep Club, they sponsored projects to help build school spirit. In cooperation with the Senior High Council, they promoted a can goods drive at Thanksgiving and a fund raising drive at Christmas for needy families. In addition, Junior High Student Council sponsored the traditional Freshman Recognition Day, took part in the Founder's Day program, and had a booth at May Fete. As a result of their participation, members of both Senior and Junior High Student Councils gained experience in the processes of democracy.

JUNIOR HIGH STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS: Seated: C. Sroufe, president. Standing: M. Brown, treasurer; R. Silverman, secretary; M. Darden, vice-president.

Pep Club

Woodward's Junior and Senior High Pep Clubs attempt to arouse school spirit and promote participation in all student activities, especially athletic events. Under the guidance of adviser Ronald Aug, Senior Pep Club aims to make all students aware of the multitude of opportunities for each student to cultivate new skills, develop talents, and gain recognition, leadership experience, and personal satisfaction. To attain these goals Pep Club stresses the importance of possessing pride in Woodward, enthusiasm for Woodward's activities, and expressing both attitudes through active participation. While organizing pep assemblies, President Danny Lewis worked in conjunction with the cheerleaders, majorettes, and athletic team members to foster spirit and interest among the student body. Planning blue and white days, chartering buses for the games, and sponsoring the sale of the shakers, derbies, and ribbons were all a part of Pep Club's program. After the presentation of letters and awards at the annual Pep Club banquet in May, the officers for the 1967-1968 school year were installed.

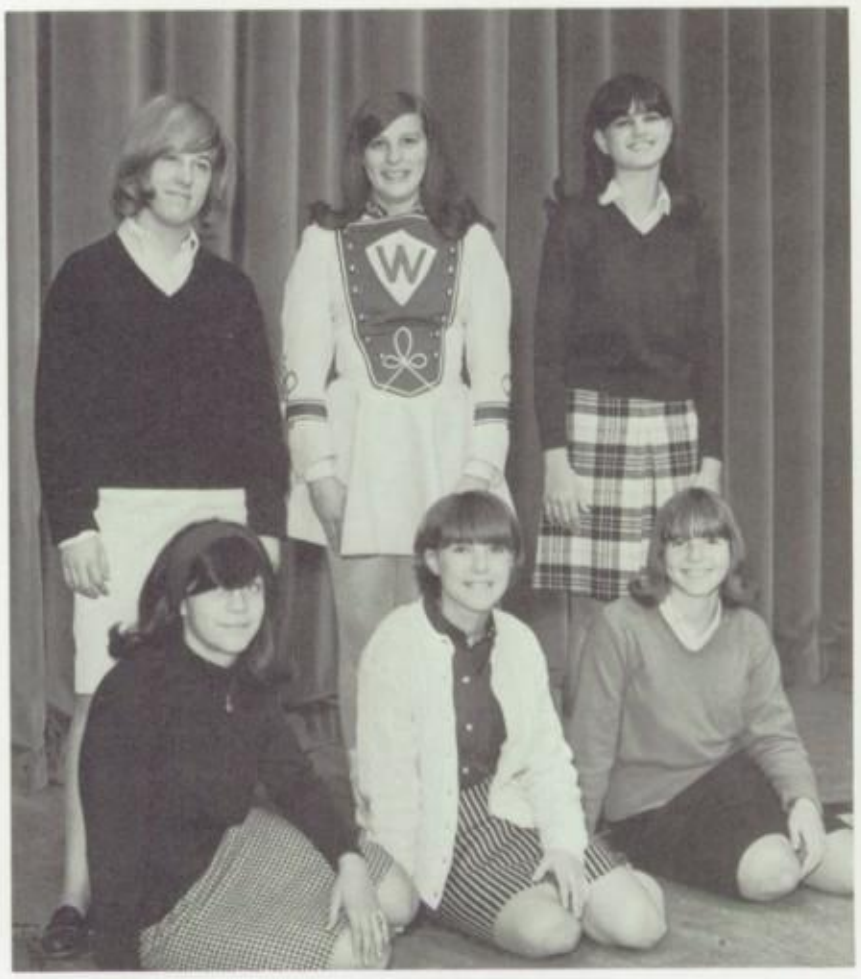
Art League

Supported by a large membership of Woodward students, Art League strives to enhance the Woodward building and grounds. In the past, Art League financed the purchase of trees and shrubbery for the quadrangle and planned for the arrangement of a star of marble chips and flowers surrounding the base of the flagpole. With the purpose of cultivating in all students an interest and appreciation for art, paintings were purchased by Art League and displayed in the halls of Woodward. This year Art League arranged the showcases with appropriate displays for Thanksgiving and Easter. During the Christmas and Chanukah season, the organization adorned the main hall with exhibits and bright holiday decorations. On Arbor Day, Art League sponsored the annual Carnation sale.



ART LEAGUE OFFICERS: Seated: A. Marmer, Jr. secretary; S. Stevens, Jr. vice-president; M. Schneider, Jr. treasurer. Standing: S. Koshover, president; J. Barasch, Sr. treasurer; B. Greenwold, Sr. secretary.

Art Club

Art Club, under the supervision of Mr. David Redfern, provides talented art students with an opportunity to express themselves creatively outside the classroom. Art Club's program, designed to promote appreciation in visual arts, included field and sketching trips, art shows, and lectures by various speakers. The organization gives valuable experience to promising art students.

National Honor Societies

The purpose of the National Honor Society is to recognize the academic achievement of students. Initiated during the fall at a special banquet and candle-lighting ceremony, new members pledge to maintain the goals of truth, scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Woodward has two chapters of Honor Society which are affiliated with the national organization. Sponsored by Miss Mildred Nickell, Junior Honor Society consists of about ninety eighth, ninth, and tenth graders. Members participated in diverse activities during the year. Their first project involved Remembrance Rocks, which were different shaped posters placed around Woodward to remind students of special events. Members tutored students in grades seven to ten in various school subjects. Junior Honor Society adopted an eight year old orphan boy from India named Francis D'costa. Other activities included decorating and operating a booth at May Fete and selling chrysanthemums for Homecoming. Sponsored by Miss Elizabeth Bohlander, Senior Honor Society is comprised of nearly eighty juniors and seniors. In December, members participated in a scavenger hunt with the winner receiving a ten dollar gift certificate. In January, Senior Honor Society sponsored a lecture by Bernard Rosenberg, head of the area's Anti-Defamation League. For a fund raising project, Senior Honor Society held a book fair in early February. In spring, a progressive dinner was held in which the different courses of a meal were held at different houses. The year was climaxed by the annual banquet and the induction of new officers.

Group 65

Woodward's orientation groups strive to help new students get acquainted with Woodward. Big Sisters and the newly reorganized Big Brothers work with the seventh graders. Last September, Big Sisters held its annual picnic at French Park. At the same time, Big Brothers held a reception in the quadrangle. In addition, the groups sponsored a night at a football game in October and a basketball game in February. Both Big Brothers and Big Sisters encourage their members to help their little brothers and sisters with individual problems in adjusting to Junior High School.

Group 65, a group of thirty seniors, deals primarily with sophomores and new juniors and seniors. Its activities included providing a sophomore orientation, sponsoring a sophomore class night at a football game, helping with sophomore class elections, and giving a reception for new juniors and seniors. In December, Group 65 sponsored a college workshop for juniors and seniors, and in the spring the group visited Shroder to help with programming schedules. In addition, members of Group 65 served as hosts for Woodward at a reception desk in the main hall and at the Founder's Day Program. Also, individual members worked with students who needed special attention with their schoolwork.

Key Club, a philanthropic organization, serves the community as well as the school. Projects included providing gifts and entertaining orphans at Christmas time, serving at the Kiwanian pancake breakfast, and working in cloak rooms. Also, Key Club sponsored speakers such as Judge Benjamin Schwartz.

In the fall, it sponsored the play, "The People Next Door," to make people aware of the racial and religious prejudices. Later, a city-wide council was organized to promote better relations within the community.

A.F.S.

Debbie Saxton helps introduce Woodward to Grace Grua.

This year the Woodward chapter of American Field Service was established. Its primary purpose is to promote better international relations by sponsoring foreign exchange students. Money for this project was raised through donations, paper drives, doughnut sales, and A.F.S. penny days. These efforts, coordinated by co-chairmen Louie Heldman and Debbie Saxton, were rewarded with the opportunity to host Graciela Grua from Villa Maria, Argentina. She had already graduated from high school where she had studied English for several years. Then, after a short vacation, Gracie taught elementary school for one month. Last August Gracie came to the United States where she lived with the Saxton family and attended Woodward High School till June. As to her future, Gracie will return to Argentina where she plans to major in English at the university. A vivacious girl, Gracie enjoys participating in all kinds of sports and playing the guitar. While at Woodward, she participated in Student Council, Pep Club, Spanish Club, and A.F.S. Club. She studied American history, English, math, French, and speech. One of the differences between America and Argentina which Gracie noticed was the temperament of the people. While the Argentineans do not hesitate to show their feelings, Americans tend to use moderation in expressing their emotions. Another difference is that in Argentina students go to school only in the morning, but they must also go on Saturdays. The experiences of this past year have been profitable for Gracie and the students of Woodward.

Led by Danny Lewis, the shows include a variety of acts such as singers, a barber shop quartet, ballet and tap dancers, and baton twirlers.

Equestrian Club

The Equestrian Club is in its second year at Woodward. Open to all juniors and seniors, the club acts as a focal point for students interested in horseback riding. All riding activities are at the option of the members, many of whom arrange private groups among themselves that take advantage of neighboring stables and trails. Camera Club is designed to provide an opportunity for students interested in photography to gain experience both in taking and processing pictures. Members compete in local and national contests. They have the opportunity to photograph such school activities as May Fete, Showcase, and the Drama Club plays. In doing so, they become more skilled in the art of photography.

Like all the organizations at Woodward, the Radio Club serves many purposes. It provides a background for those interested in electronics and amateur radio as a hobby or career. Using the school's radio station, members of the club can communicate with other "beams" throughout the country and circumnavigate the globe on radio waves.

DECA

The Future Business Leaders of America club seeks to aid its members in developing a greater knowledge of the business world. Working with one another to render service to the school and community, the members develop their own personalities and leadership qualities. This club has an interesting program of guest speakers and field trips throughout the year.

Members of Distributive Education Clubs of America strive to obtain a practical knowledge in the fields of merchandizing and distribution. DECA sponsors projects such as the autumn candy sale to gain experience in marketing. Field trips, outside speakers, and part-time employment are a few of the other activities sponsored by DECA.

Health Careers club is comprised of students wishing to be nurses, dieticians, public health and sanitation workers, doctors, and laboratory and x-ray technicians. The club meets to discuss these careers as well as to hear speakers from these various professions. Field trips are designed to allow students to observe personnel of these fields in action.

Through membership in the Future Teachers of America club, prospective teachers can obtain vital knowledge of the teaching profession. This club gives the student a clear picture of the advantages as well as the responsibilities and drawbacks of the teaching profession. Bulldog Barks

The Bulldog Barks, Woodward's weekly newspaper, is one of the most important sources of information for the student body. Each week it includes the latest developments in news and sports around Woodward, as well as two pages of editorials and feature articles. In order to maintain the high literary quality of the newspaper, each member of the journalism staff must be a capable reporter and a proficient writer. Also, the photographers must display skill in their choice of which events to photograph and how to do so in order to best portray Woodward life. Sale and weekly distribution of the Bulldog Barks is executed by the business staff. The combined efforts of these three staffs as well as individual willingness to cooperate are all necessary to create a good newspaper. As a result, the school is provided with an excellent news media and the staff members receive knowledge and experience in the field of journalism.

Included in the 36 issues of the Bulldog Barks this past year were three special issues. The Showcase issue, which was sold during the four nights of the performance, contained many scenes from the show. It also revealed some of the work and planning which went into the 1967 Showcase. The traditional Founder's Day issue in March contained many interesting articles about past activities and students at Woodward, in addition to information about this year's Founder's Day program. The final issue was the Class Day issue in which the names of some of the students receiving awards and honors for outstanding achievements throughout the year were recorded.

Woodward Treasures

The goal of the 1967 Treasures staff is to reflect an image of Woodward through vivid photographs, lively copy, and an informal layout style. The staff hopes that the product of their efforts will provide both a lasting and a memorable record of 1966—1967 at Woodward. The informal layout designs, emphasizing an artistic use of white space, are relaxed yet have a definite form. The artwork and blockprints used on the cover and divider pages are designed to uniquely emphasize the fable aspect of the theme. The antique quality of the prints combined with modern lay-out techniques re-echo both the fine tradition and growing reputation of Woodward. Thus, through modern style reinforced by ancient beauty, the 1967 Treasures staff has sought to compose a book of ever-increasing value to the students, faculty, and administration of Woodward.

Ensemble

ENSEMBLE OFFICERS: P. Cohen, secretary; M. Wilson, president; B. Greer, treasurer; M. Ingalsbe, vice-president.

Ensemble, Woodward's select choral group of juniors and seniors, acquires recognition and fame through performances at Woodward and outside the school. Rehearsing regularly during the summer and every fourth bell throughout the year, Ensemble, directed by Mr. Frank Lang, is able to master a repertoire of over one hundred songs. Participation in such a small group causes each member to become aware of the necessity for individual proficiency. Entertaining audiences throughout the city, Ensemble kept a busy schedule preceding and during the holiday season. Both the serious and the festive aspects of the holiday season were presented in the Holiday Concert with the singing of The Meaning of Christmas, The Carol of the Drum, and Jingle Bells. Ensemble's opening performance of Good Day in the 1967 Woodward Showcase and closing selection from Cinderella will long be remembered. Also, a feature of this year's Ensemble was its performance in the 1967 May Fete. This year the Woodward Ensemble was privileged to perform on two occasions with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. On February 21, Ensemble, in conjunction with all the other Ensembles in the Cincinnati Public Schools, sang Brahm's How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place and He, Watching Over Israel by Mendelsohn. Eric Kunzel conducted the program. Leonard Bernstein's Chichester Psalms was performed by all the Ensembles at Music Hall on May 20, with the renowned Robert Shaw conducting.

Senior Choir

Vocal talent, interest, and deportment are prerequisites for membership in Senior Choir. Selected through auditions in the spring, the one hundred fifty junior and senior girls and boys of Woodward's largest choral group rehearse regularly third period under the direction of Mr. Frank Lang to prepare for their performances. Prior to their opening program, each singer was issued the traditional blue and white robe, which helped instill the pride that typifies Senior Choir members. The first public performance of this year, the Thanksgiving assembly, set the stage for future music-making. For the Holiday Concert, the choir awakened the festive spirit with the singing of I Wonder as I Wander, My Dancing Day, and A Merry Christmas. Immediately after the short vacation, rehearsals began for the highlight of the year—1967 Woodward Showcase. Following Showcase, the Senior Choir commenced practice for the Founder's Day in March and the Spring Concert in May. After the fun and relaxation of a picnic in June, the choir returned to the serious event of Commencement. As the seniors recalled the memories of the past year and the juniors looked forward anxiously to their senior year, the Woodward Senior Choir harmonized with strains fitting to the mood of the ceremony.

Sophomore Choir is a performing choral group composed of one hundred thirty tenth graders under the direction of Mr. Lang. The members are chosen on a competitive basis. Their selection is determined by the quality of their voices, their desire to sing, and their knowledge of music. Sophomore Choir sings in several programs throughout the year such as the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies and the Christmas and Spring Concerts sponsored by the Parent-Faculty Council. Included in its repertoire are such songs as the Alma Mater and The Night Before Christmas. Through the training received both in class and in the performances given throughout the year, the members of Sophomore Choir gain the valuable experience necessary for participation in Senior Choir and in Ensemble. To provide enjoyment for the choir members, the school, and the community is the goal of each member of Sophomore Choir.

Under the direction of Mrs. Marian Lieberman nearly eighty-five eighth and ninth grade boys and girls of the Junior High Choir have an opportunity to express their feelings through music. Meeting every day fifth bell, the members prepare for their varied activities. At their first performance of the year, the Thanksgiving assembly, the choir sang One God and Come Ye Thankful People. During the Christmas assembly, the choir entertained the parents and Junior High with Lullaby Little Babe, Rise Up Shepherd, and Masters In The Hall. Other performances included Founder's Day and tours of the elementary schools. Their final performance of the year was the Spring Concert which included such songs as, Put On a Happy Face, Yellow Bird, and People. The officers of Junior High Choir are Yvonne Scott, president; Dalphine Pool, vice-president; Susan Sadler, secretary; and Jeffrey Swillinger, treasurer.

Senior Band

Under the skillful leadership of Mr. Bryson Curry, the Woodward High School Band has wide and varied activities involving the Marching Band, Concert Band, Stage Band, and other smaller groups. Band is a year round activity with performances starting the first week with football and ending the final week with Class Day exercises.

The Marching Band proved a large factor in establishing the high spirit which permeated the student body throughout the football season. Pep Band, marching through the halls as well as playing at pep assemblies, aroused school spirit. Many hours of practice were spent to master the precision drills and formations for each week's show. For the first time, practice began two weeks prior to the opening of school for the sophomores, in order to give them marching and playing experience. The season was climaxed with the successful trip to the Bellefontaine game.

Concert Band's activities include the Holiday Assemblies, Spring Concert, tours of other schools, and Class Day exercises. However, the bandsmen spend the most time preparing for the contests. One Saturday in March is devoted to solo and ensemble contests in which bandsmen may compete individually or in small groups for ratings. The following Saturday is the district band contest in which the entire band competes. Any soloist, ensemble, or band which receives a superior rating has the opportunity to go to the state contest to compete for ratings, medals, and scholarships. In order to help finance this active band program, members of the band sold candles at Christmas time.

Stage Band, composed of about twenty bandsmen, serves as the Showcase Band. Stage Band rehearsals begin early in the year and are held every Monday night. Many hours are devoted to the preparation of the numerous songs required for Showcase. Individual bandsmen also participate in Showcase, as soloists or in small groups, such as Dixieland Band. Besides Showcase, Stage Band has several other performances during the year.

Music Masters

Tri-M or Modern Music Masters is a musical society composed of both talented and dedicated students of music. Chosen from such groups as Senior Band, Orchestra, and Choir, the members, led by President Pam Conrad, encouraged the student body to attend the symphony orchestra concerts and sponsored the LaSalle Quartet which visited Woodward.

Stage Crew

Behind the scenes of every Woodward dramatic activity and program, stand the members of the stage crew. Controlling the light and sound systems of Woodward's auditorium is only one of their essential duties. The crew spends long hours of preparation for a play in constructing sets and completing other tasks which are vital to the success of the program. This dedicated group of students forms an essential link in the complex network required to produce a program at Woodward. Without the stage crew, the show could never go on.

Visual Aides

The audio-visual aid crew is a group of volunteer students responsible for the distribution and maintenance of the audio-visual aid equipment of Woodward. Because these students are willing to serve, all the other students possess the advantage of the audio-visual material which is often fundamental in the understanding of a course. Besides distributing projectors, record players, and tape recorders, the audio-visual aid crew must keep the equipment in proper working order. Because of this crew, Woodward's students have a wealth of films and records to supplement their education.

Drama Club

Drama Club provides Woodward's senior high students with an opportunity to gain experience in theatrical procedures. Members of the club participate in acting, applying stage make-up, making sets, selling tickets, and even directing. This year the theme of the club's two productions, Mad Woman of Chaillot and Antigone, was the European theater. In addition, Drama Club helped with the production of The People Next Door and served as the nucleus of Showcase. At monthly meetings throughout the year, the members discuss coming productions and business matters. In the spring, Drama Club held its annual picnic, at which the officers for next year were installed. Also, awards were presented to several members who performed especially well during the year. Members of Drama Club can become members of the National Thespian Society by earning points for the number of hours they work on productions during the year.

Theater Guild is a dramatic organization for Woodward's junior high students. Like Drama Club, it provides its members with experience in such theatrical procedures as costuming, make-up, publicity, and acting. In addition to the cultural experience and knowledge they gain, the members of Theater Guild can also acquire self-confidence and poise. At their meetings, skits and short plays were presented in order that each member could have some acting experience. During the year they performed a total of six one-act plays which, in general, were on the lighter side. At the end of this year, awards were presented to outstanding members of Theater Guild. Theater Guild's newly selected motto is Ad Homines Ostendam—To reflect human nature.

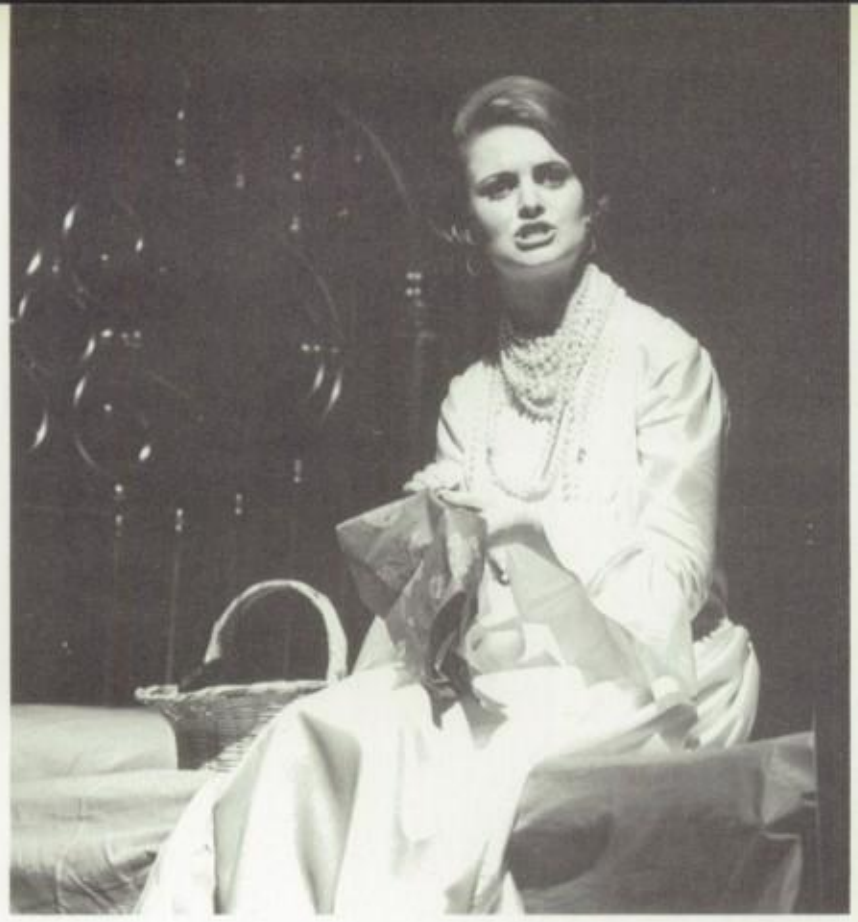
The Mad Woman of Chaillot

Drama Club chose The Madwoman of Chaillot by Jean Giraudoux for its fall production. The play is a comedy-farce and has a great deal of fantasy involved in its plot. The Madwoman of Chaillot is the story of the madwoman of Paris who is mad in the eyes of the people who do not understand her. She tries to prevent a scheme to drill for oil everywhere in Paris and to thus undermine the city. She plays on the greed of the people of the city by planting the story in their hearts that she has found oil in her basement, which is actually a bottomless cave. She tricks the greedy into making them swindle her out of her property and then ushers them into the bottomless cave. Now the city is saved from the evil of the greedy people, while their poor victims survive. Leading female roles were carried by Sandy Madden who played the countess, and Nancy Helwig, Debbie Kaplan, and Dana Martin, who played the madwomen. The leading male roles were played by Mike Blackman as the prospector, Bob Mayer as the Baron, Danny Lewis as Pierre, and Harold Hunley as the rag picker. The sets for the production were made by the stage crew, and the costumes were entirely made by Dana Martin. The assistant director was Jan Kaplan.



"They were wicked, and wickedness evaporates."

"Mr. President, what exactly is the purpose of our new company?"

Founder's Day

On March 3, 1967, Woodward held its annual Founder's Day program honoring William Woodward. Because of the dreams and dedication of this man, the institution, which he established in 1831, today enjoys the distinction of being the oldest free public high school in the world. Special guests for the day's events included members of the classes of 1917 and 1942 who celebrated their 50th and 25th anniversaries, respectively. Also present were graduates from over 55 years ago and officers and trustees of the Alumnal Association. Activities of the day began with the traditional wreath-laying ceremony at the statue of William Woodward. At noon a luncheon was given for all the guests, followed by an assembly in the afternoon which was attended by graduates and seniors of Woodward High School. The remainder of the student body listened to the program over the public address system. During the program the orchestra and choir performed several selections; Bob Gordon represented the class of 1967 by delivering his speech, "A Man, An Institution, A Tradition"; greetings were extended by representatives of the class of 1917 and the class of 1942; and the Woodward Bell was rung by the oldest graduate present, Mrs. Cornelia Brown from the class of 1894. Thus the tradition and spirit of Woodward High School were revitalized by the 1967 Founder's Day program.

Mrs. Cornelia Brown, Class of 1894, rings the Woodward Bell.

1967 Woodward Showcase, the culmination of months of preparation for over four hundred students and teachers, captivated and thrilled the audience from the moment that the Woodward Precision Chorus kicked onto the stage until the final strains of the Cinderella Medley were resounded by the eighty voice choir. A diversity of talent, polished and coordinated by Mr. Frank Lang and Mr. Bryson Curry, flashed within the circle of the spotlight. The throbbing sounds of a rock and roll band, the graceful leaps of a toe dancer, and the resonant polyphony of Ensemble characterized Showcase 67.

Under the direction of Mr. Ronald Aug, the thirty-five separate numbers were connected by the story of two agencies competing to secure the account of the Dandee Andee Candee Company. With the aid of disc jockey, Mike Wright, the Adverse Agency under Angela Adverse schemed to procure the account from the Ace Ad Agency by proposing a radio campaign for a candy product, Munchies. While Angela Adverse encouraged Mike's interest in Mrs. Andee's daughter, the Ace Agency utilized their computer to develop a counter course of action. The computer's suggestion, declared illegal by F.L.A.B.B., resulted in the awarding of the account to the Adverse Agency.

Coach Jack Campbell's spirited, fighting Bulldogs, displaying an explosive, hammering offense coupled with a tenacious, stingy defense, overpowered their foes to cop a PHSL championship with an 8—1—1 record. PAT attempts stopped Woodward from having an undefeated slate. Gritty Hamilton Garfield, fifth-ranked in Ohio, battled the Bulldogs evenly before pulling out a hard-earned 7—6 victory on a place kick conversion point. In the season finale, in a mud-spoiled contest that slowed Woodward's potent running attack, Bellfontaine managed to tie the men of Woodward, 8—8, by converting their extra points. Despite these two heartbreaks, the Woodward crew devastated defending champions Withrow with a 46—6 victory, annihilated rival Walnut Hills 48—0, and overcame a tough Moeller team, 8—6.

The victories were great team efforts, but there were some standout players. Senior Ron Murray, a 6' 5" 200 pound center, gained league, city, and state recognition. Mike Hacker called the signals, and Junior Turner led the offensive attack, piling up 1513 yards to eclipse an old Woodward record. Turner was selected WSAI back-of-the-week for his performance against Walnut Hills. Seniors Tom Malone and Tom Kimmey recovered from early season injuries to accent the powerful attack. The rugged Bulldog defense was second best in the city, holding their opponents to a meager 53 points in ten games. Such stalwarts as Greg Bomar, John Slaughter, Steve Pennington, Arthur Jackson, and Mike Smith led this outstanding defense.

Woodward's harriers, plagued continually by injuries, suffered a disappointing season, finishing a dismal seventh in Public High School League competition. Senior co-captain Tom Grogan pulled up lame with a torn leg muscle early in the season and was unable to participate in important meets. Ron Thompson, the other co-captain and hopeful standout, was hampered with leg injuries throughout the season and was not able to perform up to his ability.

Juniors Lonnie Brock and Greg Williams paced the Cross Country attack, finishing one-two for Woodward in every meet. Brock received the Booster's Trophy this year for his outstanding performance. In the first PHSL Cross Country run, a healthy Woodward squad finished in a tie for second place with Brock and Williams finishing 7th and 17th, respectively. However, after this start, the injury-prone harriers slipped to a seventh place overall record. In the Southwestern District meet, Brock finished a respectable 17 out of 76 runners; but the team closed the season with a 15th place finish.

The Woodward Varsity Swimming Team, under the direction of Coach Melvin Russell, displayed fine individual and team efforts. As a definite threat in all events, senior Ed Levine led the Woodward assault. Levine holds school records in the 100 yard breaststroke, 100 yard backstroke, 200 yard and 60 yard individual medleys, and was a member of the record setting 200 yard medley relay team. Seniors Jon Bruno and Bob Fleischer also held important positions. Bruno swam the 60 and 100 yard freestyle and butterfly. Fleischer swam the 50 yard freestyle.

Art Daniels, a junior merman, performed ably in the 100 yard butterfly and 200 and 400 yard freestyles. Juniors Lee Casuto, Marty Levine, and Rich Weiner present a strong nucleus for returning swimmers.

In the opening meets, the Bulldog swimmers defeated Middletown, but lost to Oak Hills, and then finished second in a four way meet. Sophomores Steve Collins and Frank Baldwin are the team's future leaders.

Varsity Basketball

The Woodward Varsity Cagers, despite an unimpressive 9—11 record and fourth place finish in PHSL play, provided a season of exciting, gripping basketball for its fans. Led by Senior co-captains Alan Daniels and Jim Pesout, the Bulldogs displayed hardnosed basketball through a season full of ups and downs.

In the first game of the season against a hustling Finneytown team, the Bulldogs earned Coach Sid Friedman his 200th victory of his career. The win was gained on the strength of Senior guard Marty Scruggs's string of eight consecutive field goals and 23 points. Woodward's best all-around effort, when they humiliated Walnut Hills 81—53, marked a tremendous team effort of powerful offense and sticky defense. In a game that few fans saw, Woodward pulled out a squeaker, 66—64, at Wilmington, Ohio, when 6'-5" Alan Daniels pumped in 36 points. After Courter Tech embarassed Woodward in overtime, the Bulldogs gained revenge with a season-high point total, 84—63. Alan Daniels scored a personal high of 38 points in this thriller. In the post-season tournament an aroused Bulldog team surprised Glen Este 51—47 as Daniels again led the team with 29 points. However, Woodward fortunes were lost when Indian Hill, behind after three quarters, defeated Woodward 58—46 as the Bulldogs collapsed in the final period, thus terminating the season.

The Varsity Cagers displayed one of the best offenses in the city. Led by high-scoring Alan Daniels, who compiled a 22.4 point per game average, the Bulldogs scored 63 points a game. But periods of lackadaisical defense and uninspired rebounding slowed Woodward's chances for a more impressive record.

A talented, experienced Woodward Gymnastics Team became the second Bulldog team to win a PHSL championship this year. In doing so, the muscular tumblers were victorious in each of the three league meets. Also, in a city-wide YMCA meet, the gymnasts placed first; then, completing their season, they competed admirably in the State meet, finishing 8th out of the 24 schools in competition.

On the strength of fine individual records, the Woodward gymnasts were able to obtain excellent team victories. Seniors Bill Johnston and Bill Baum were the team mainstays. Johnston won All-Around in the Walnut Hills meet, placing 1st in the long horse, parallel bars, and floor exercise. He added firsts on the parallel bars in the meets at Woodward and the YMCA and then placed a solid fourth in the State Meet. At Courter, Bill Baum won the parallel bars event and tied for first in the Free Exercise competition. Baum placed 5th in the State Meet on the parallel bars. Junior Jeff Metzger provided consistent scoring for Woodward in the floor exercise. Jeff placed a respectable 6th in the State Meet on this event. Seniors Jim Routzong and Doug Hammond scored for Woodward in rings competition, as did Paul Glassman, who surprised many with a 6th place finish on the rings in the State Meet.

With the loss of this year's seniors, the nucleus of next year's team will depend upon a fine Reserve squad, which also earned a Championship this year.

Faculty Engages in Diverse Activities

Teacher and student co-operate to solve problem.

Mr. Brooks teaches students art appreciation.

Administration

Mr. Harry Hannum

In only two years at Woodward, Mr. Harry Hannum has introduced to the school many new programs designed to prepare Woodward's students to be contributing citizens in our complex society. Mr. Hannum believes the open campus and self enrollment programs help place the primary responsibility of education upon the student himself. The student decides for himself how to most effectively use his time and what subjects are best for him. The American Mind, applied botany, and the enrichment courses offer every student the opportunity to progress as far as he possibly can. Mr. Hannum feels that his plans have succeeded in enabling Woodward's students to develop the maturity needed for self decision.

Although his main interest lies in Woodward, Mr. Hannum also enjoys participating in sports such as tennis, golf, and bowling. Having been a pilot in World War II, he spends much of his spare time in flying. With his wife and four children, he has taken many trips throughout the United States by plane. Under the guidance of Mr. Hannum, Woodward should continue to be a leading center of education in Cincinnati.

Mr. William Loughrey

As assistant principal of Woodward High School, Mr. William Loughrey assumes the responsibility of guiding and administering students and teachers in the junior high school. His primary task is to see that the seventh, eighth, and ninth grade students make good use of their educational opportunities and thereby prepare themselves for the challenges of senior high school. Before joining the Woodward faculty, Mr. Loughrey was a teacher at Gamble Junior High School and a principal at Porter Junior High School. Through these two positions, Mr. Loughrey acquired the practical experience necessary for the complexities of Woodward. For relaxation, Mr. Loughrey enjoys sports both as a participant and spectator. As a bowler, Mr. Loughrey is one of the leaders in the Schoolmaster's League. He also excels in golf and baseball. As a fan, Mr. Loughrey follows closely local professional and college teams, and naturally, he is a big booster of the Woodward Bulldogs.

Mr. Charles Nuckolls

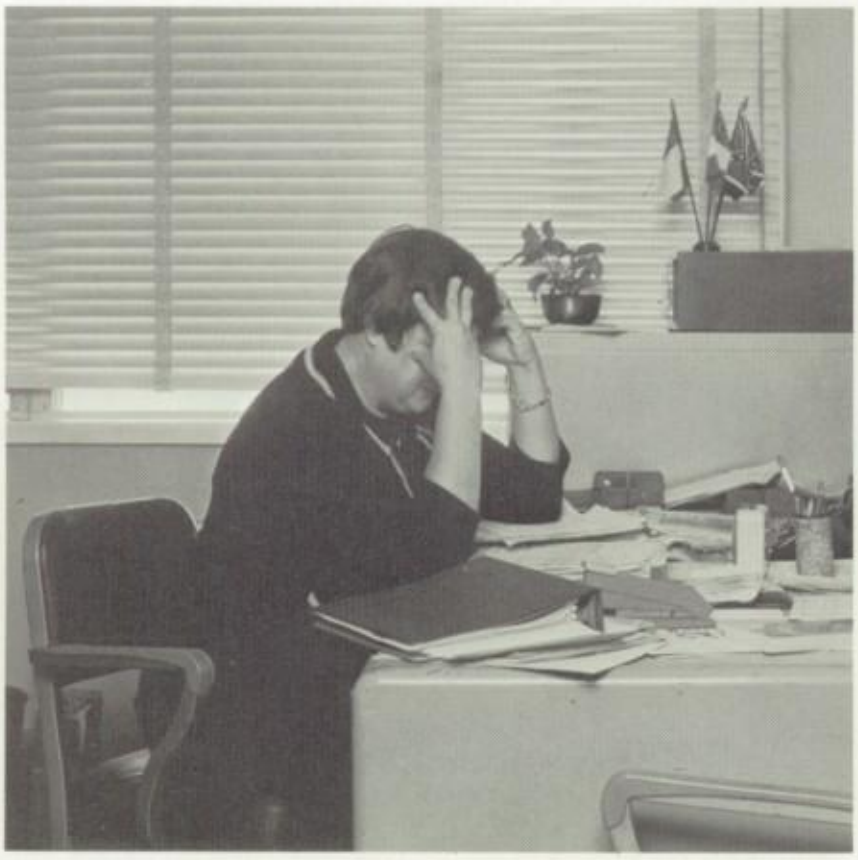
In only two years at Woodward, Mr. Charles Nuckolls has become actively involved in the school administration. His position as senior high principal involves several major functions. In the senior high, his responsibilities include pupil attendance, behavior, and discipline. All textbooks used in the school are assigned by Mr. Nuckolls. By attending departmental meetings as a representative of the administration, he works closely with the science and business departments. As chairman of the awards committee, Mr. Nuckolls is associated with every honor given by the school to students. Registering all boys for the draft is another of his many duties.

Outside of school, Mr. Nuckolls' interests are also diverse. He enjoys golfing, camping, fishing, reading, and simply relaxing. He spends part of each summer traveling with his wife and two young children. Mr. Nuckolls graduated from Central State College and received his Master's Degree at Ohio State.

Mr. Eugene Shrimpton

Mr. Eugene Shrimpton, administrative assistant principal, serves as Woodward's supervisor and co-ordinator for the curriculum. As faculty advisor, Mr. Shrimpton arranges meetings, assists new teachers, and helps improve pupil-teacher relationships. Dealing with disciplinary problems, Mr. Shrimpton inspires students to improve their conduct. Aside from his responsibilities at Woodward, Mr. Shrimpton engages in cultural and athletic activities. Acutely interested in history, he spends many hours furthering his knowledge in this field. Golfing is his most enjoyable recreational activity. Mr. Shrimpton's varied interests and activities provide him with the versatile personality to fulfill his many responsibilities.

Counselors



Under pressure.

The counselors assist students in both school life and future preparations. They begin early in the summer and work on such time-consuming tasks as the planning of programs for junior high students, and assisting the senior high students in choosing the classes for which they are best suited. The counselors conduct workshops to aid some juniors and seniors in their choice of colleges and discuss with others the opportunities beckoning them after graduation. They have instituted a library, which may be used during the day by students, and have filled it with numerous catalogues from many different universities. The counselors are available by appointment to meet with parents and students to discuss any problems concerning school programs, choice of colleges, or vocational training. They also provide information on tests given at school concerning colleges or special subjects open to particular students. So it is that the counseling staff is kept busy all day long, advising and aiding students on both academic and vocational subjects.

Library

Woodward's librarians have kept pace with the ever expanding curricula and higher standards in education. Mrs. Anna Borchin, Mrs. Mary Siddall, and Mrs. Carolyn Byron, in addition to selecting, cataloguing, and shelving books and periodicals, give freely of their time in order to help students and faculty members gather information. At the present time there are approximately 30,000 books in both libraries. As much as $10,000 is spent on new books and periodicals each year. Constant changes are being made in the library to better accommodate the increasing number of books.

The librarians are anxious to teach every student the necessary skills in using the library to his greatest advantage. The librarians are also concerned about helping the teachers so that students can learn the maximum in each class. The library is a major source of materials used in research and job advancement. Textbooks become outdated; thus, to keep up with new material in many subjects, the library is a very important factor in today's education.

English

The English program at Woodward offers a variety of courses with an emphasis on growth and improvement in the use of the English language. The Senior High English department is under the auspices of Mr. Paul Hendrick, while Miss Mildred Nickell heads the department at the Junior High level. There are four programs from which to choose English classes: advanced placement, academic, general, and basic. The advanced program begins in the sophomore year and is continued through the senior year. Only certain qualified students may enter this program. At the end of the senior year, this program offers an examination from which successful students may obtain college credit in English.

Another section of the English department is the Reading Development Program. Better Reading is a course designed for people reading at their grade level but who wish to improve their comprehension, vocabulary, and rate of reading. Reading Improvement is offered to those students who read below their grade level but hope to strengthen their skills in reading.

Languages

Upon entering any of the classrooms of the various foreign languages offered at Woodward, one finds the students extremely absorbed in the subject which is being presented. The instructors are able to recreate with great success the cultural and historical backgrounds of the languages being taught. In this type of setting, the difficulties that arise in learning a new language seem to disappear. The audio-visual method of learning is being employed to familiarize the beginning students with the subject matter. With the aid of dialogues, oral drills, and the modern language laboratory equipment, a student is able to acquire an oral proficiency in his particular field of study. Learning to converse is a major part of this program. Foreign language studies at Woodward do not end with the closing of school. Each language teacher sponsors an extra-curricular club which enhances the program of study offered at Woodward.

Social Studies

Social studies constitutes the study of the human race in terms of its history, evolution, and present condition, the laws which govern its development, and the place of the individual in his environment. Included in the broad scope of social studies are history, sociology, economics, current affairs, geography, government, and political philosophy. A thorough research and explanation of the physical and industrial view of the world, which enable the student to fully comprehend history, are presented in world geography. Modern history and world history are taught as inexact sciences in which the student deals with the infinite and variable influences that affected the Eastern and Western civilizations. The Woodward student experiences a most interesting and informative year in American history—a systematic account of the events affecting America and a philosophical explanation of their causes. The American Mind, a new course patterned after a college seminar class, examines the American esprit through the historical behavior and significant literature of the American people.

Music

Music is an art of sound in time which expresses ideas and emotions in significant forms through the elements of rhythm, melody, harmony, and color. However, at Woodward music is more; it is a way of life, a heritage of achievement and fulfillment to both those who participate and those who just listen and enjoy. Under the helpful guidance and direction of Woodward's fine music staff, the students are taught self-expression and perfection in their field of study. Concerts given by the choral and instrumental groups provide spirit and joy for the various holiday seasons. The achievements of the music department are shown when the songs of gleeful students echo through the halls. Music provides a worthwhile emotional escape and release from the many tensions and rigors of school life. This diversified department does not limit its work to the school alone, but often displays its talents at churches, conventions, and social gatherings.

MUSIC: Mrs. Marian Lieberman, Mrs. Alberta Schneider, Mr. Bryson Curry, Mr. Frank Lang.

Art

The student in his art class is encouraged to produce original works which reflect his creativity and self-expression. Throughout the year the art department strives to foster within each student an appreciation of art. Artistic techniques, styles, and movements from Impressionism to Pop Art are studied in depth. The beauty of nature and that of man's creation are accentuated in the classes. In addition, the art department heartily encourages students to submit their work in city-wide competition, such as the Scholastic Art Show sponsored by Shillito's. In this way artistic ability is recognized throughout the city. This recognition provides all the motivation necessary for the talented student. The art department works closely with two school organizations: Art Club and Art League. Art Club strives to present the works of promising students to the rest of the student body through various exhibitions. The latter works to beautify the school grounds besides purchasing paintings for the hallways.

Math

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Duffy, Woodward's mathematics department provides a wide selection of courses. For those who plan to enter the business world immediately after graduation, Woodward offers business arithmetic and consumer mathematics. For other students, Woodward offers a program which consists of algebra in the ninth grade, geometry in the tenth, intermediate algebra in the eleventh, and trigonometry and solid geometry in the twelfth grade. For those students who successfully pass a screening test in the ninth grade, the mathematics department offers an accelerated program in which the latter three years of work are completed in two years. In their senior year, the students in this advanced placement program take college calculus. A national examination is given at the end of the year, and many colleges grant credit to students with high scores. A library of modern texts and materials aids the teachers in enabling the students to develop their potentials as fully as possible in preparation for our competitive and automated society.

Health and Driver's Education

DRIVER'S EDUCATION: Mr. Craig MacMann, Mr. Melvin Russell.

Woodward students are required to take health for one semester in their sophomore year and for two semesters in their senior year. Seniors study first aid, marriage, and family living. In the sophomore year, health students learn the basic concepts of personal cleanliness, good grooming, and causes and prevention of various diseases. In the other semester, sophomores study driver's education. In this course students learn the fundamental skills of driving. The emphasis is on theory, not on practice. Students gain perspective as they study the qualities which make an individual a good driver. They do not only learn the traffic regulations, but also the mechanical workings of the automobile. Both health and driver's education serve to increase the student's knowledge and to make him a well-rounded person.

HEALTH: Mr. Frank Kling, Mr. Charles Smith, Mrs. Ruby Hawkins, Mr. Harry Skiff.

Physical Education

At one time or another, every student must divert his attention from study to engage in some type of physical activity. Woodward's physical education program provides this outlet. The gym teachers conduct classes six periods a day; their duties include supervising all games and activities, teaching students new skills, perfecting the abilities of talented students, and creating feats for competition. In addition to class time, the members of this department work into the early evening coaching and managing the many varsity sports. The advice and training of the coaches enable individual athletes to excel in their chosen sports. Above all, the members of the physical education department have those qualities of friendship and leadership which provide the student with a feeling of relaxation in the midst of the academic strains of the school day.

BOYS' GYM: Mr. Jack Campbell, Mr. Stan Castelli, Mr. Arthur Paul, Mr. Sid Friedman.

GIRLS' GYM: Miss Garlene Stenger, Mrs. Lucille Ruth, Miss Martha Reed.

Science

The primary function of the science department is to stimulate the student's interest in the natural world. At Woodward, the student is offered a wide assortment of science courses from which he may select his special interests. The advanced science student may participate in Physical Science Seminar and Biological Science Seminar. Applied Botany, offered only at Woodward, is a new course for students especially interested in landscaping and gardening. In well equipped laboratories, students perform experiments and apply the scientific skills learned in the classroom. With the help of skilled teachers, students learn to interpret that which they observe in the world around them.

Home Economics

HOME ECONOMICS: Mrs. Marialyce Knoll, Mrs. Jean Armstrong, Mrs. Maxine Blotter.

The members of the Home Economics Department at Woodward feel that every girl is responsible for efficiently managing her household. The purpose of the Home Economics Department is to teach girls the culinary arts and the skills of serving. With the curriculum branching off into various areas, students accumulate useful knowledge in the various fields of child development, home furnishing, health, community relationships, home nursing, nutrition, and budget management. This year the Home Economics Department offers Woodward students a new course—Survey of Family Living. This is a class primarily for students who are following an academic or commercial program, but who do not have a major or minor in home economics. In the Survey of Family Living course, students enjoy hearing lectures on marriage and discussing teen-age problems. The goal of this new course, as the goal of all home economics courses, is to prepare the student for the future with the practical skills of home care.

Industrial Arts

The industrial arts department seeks to help the student improve and refine his basic manual skills. The preliminary step is the employment of textbooks and lectures to convey the theoretical knowledge necessary to achieve the desired results. Through participation, the student gains competence and self-satisfaction in his work, as he turns raw materials into attractive and useful products. In the wood shops, inanimate wood mystically transforms into living furniture. Cold, hard metal is forged into practical articles in the metal working shop. Salvaged components create a radio which plays music. Mechanical drawing is the universal language; everyone learns what that little crooked line means. In all phases of industrial arts, the instructors advise the students concerning their imperfections. The craftsmen try to eliminate these flaws and strive to perfect their work. The industrial arts department gives the student a well balanced program of invaluable training for future employment and a successful career.

Business

The business department, using the latest equipment, develops the basic skills necessary for competence in office and sales positions in business and industry. Students in business classes learn to appreciate the American system of free enterprise.

Various business courses are offered to prepare students for future jobs. These courses include: shorthand, typing, clerical practice, office practice, business law, and secretarial practice, a two year course held two bells a day. Each class is led by a highly skilled, specially trained business teacher.

Many of the students taking business subjects are also involved in the Future Business Leaders of America, an organization to prepare the students for their future in the business world. Thus, through intense training in the classroom and participation in the program of FBLA, these students develop practical skills on which to base a career in business.

Seventh Graders Prepare for Future

Mrs. Walters directs a lost seventh grader.

Bewilderment must be the first feeling that the seventh graders experience upon their arrival at Woodward. However, with the efficient and competent assistance of organizations such as Big Sisters and Big Brothers, the able seventh graders, Woodward's youngest class, eventually adapt to their new surroundings. Once the seventh graders are settled in Woodward's community, they aspire to become a vibrant, energetic part of school life. Their most important and outstanding achievement is adapting to Woodward itself; if they are able to do this, their success at Woodward is secure. Woodward High School offers many varied and interesting activities for the seventh graders. By involving themselves, they can become an important part of the school; for without student participation from all classes, Woodward loses its unity. The seventh grader's task is difficult, especially at Woodward; for he must adapt from the adolescent elementary school to Woodward's vast teenage community. The sooner he makes this change, the sooner he succeeds.

Eighth Graders: an Enthusiastic Team

At the end of their second year at Woodward, the class of '71 have proven themselves assets to the school. Beyond the confusion of the seventh grade, they have now become homogeneous parts of the life at Woodward. In all the organizations in which they have participated, and also in their studies, the eighth graders have shown tremendous school spirit and enthusiasm. By their great support of the Thanksgiving drive, the Red Cross drive, and other worthy causes, the class of '71 have demonstrated their great potential for leading such activities. Through their actions in the past two years, these young people have grown and matured. They have proven their leadership qualities and will be ably prepared to assume the lead position in the Junior High next year.

Class of '70 Leads the Junior High

Doorway frolic.

This year the class of 1970 has been in the junior high's position of leadership and the freshmen have tackled their job successfully. Accepting the responsibility of leadership in the many fields important to the junior high student's life has always been the duty of the ninth grade class. Throughout the year, these conscientious students have taken pride in their actions and achievements as leaders of the junior high. Whether he is working after school for Theatre Guild, or for Student Council, or participating in the music or atheltic programs, each ninth grader has attempted to achieve his own aspirations. Just as the senior class must lead the juniors and sophomores, the freshman class must set the example for the seventh and eighth graders. By accepting this responsibility, the ninth graders have gained the experience and maturity to become a successful division of the Senior High in future years.

Beginning anew might aptly describe the sophomores' role at Woodward. A year ago as ninth graders, they led their respective junior high schools; but now they have become new students in Woodward's huge senior high. However, undaunted by the complexities of senior high life, the determined sophomores displayed their school spirit by turning out en masse for the Sophomore Night at the Woodward-Western Hills football game. They further proved it through excellent attendance at other sports events and all school productions. In November they upheld the Sophomore Class tradition of entering a float in the Homecoming competition. Starting financially with nothing, the treasury soon expanded through well-planned and co-ordinated candy sales during the entire school year. Thus, under the leadership of excellent officers and the guidance of Mr. Walker, the Sophomore Class eagerly prepared for its future years at Woodward.

Juniors Prepare for a Leading Role

With the help of Mr. Oriez, the eleventh graders accomplished this year's goals and now are ready and eager to assume the honor of leadership at Woodward. Their spirit, vigor, and desire to perform at their best were seen through all the various activities in which they entered—the candy sale, design of the Homecoming float, ordering of class rings, and open houses which they sponsored. The treasures of the year culminated in the combined junior-senior prom. In addition to their activities, the class of 1968 had to plan for their college education. This preparation included interviews with counselors and college representatives, writing of applications, and taking college board tests. Thus, the juniors built a foundation for their senior year, a structure in which countless memories will be stored.

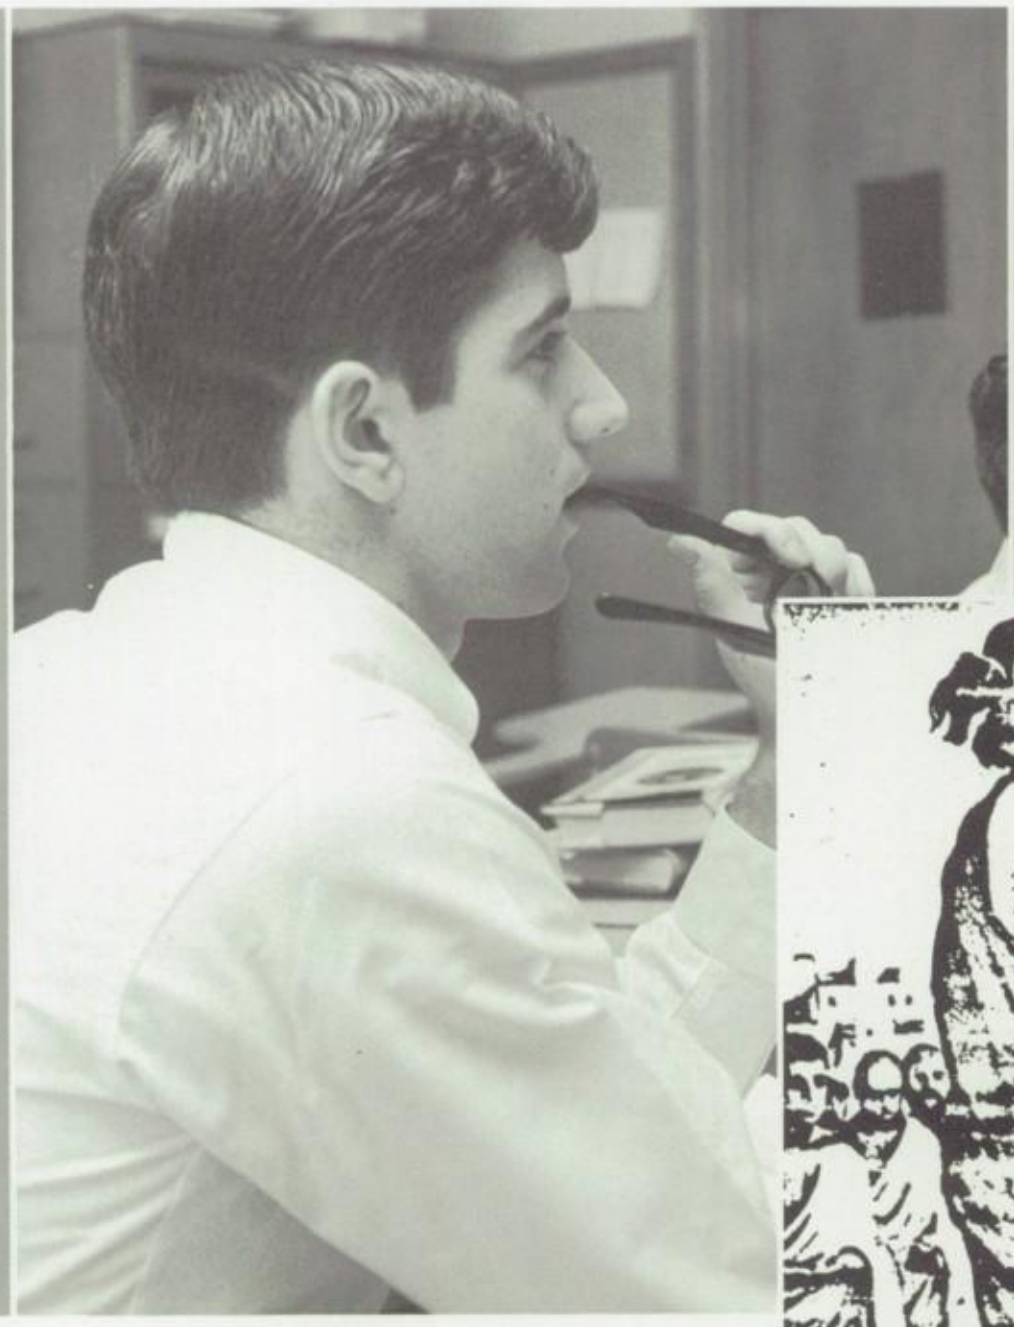
SENIORS



Climactic Ending to the Senior Drama

The graduating class of 1967 has distinguished itself as one of Woodward's finest. While burdened with college applications and entrance exams, class rank, and the usual student worries, many of the seniors excelled as members of a group or as individuals. Ron Murray, all-league, all-city, and all-state center, captained a championship football team. Lonnie Kaplan, editor of the annual, led his staff to the realization of the Treasures' unique theme. For Peg Fay and John Fugazzi, it was a year of strenuous work on the Bulldog Barks and Oracle respectively; but in retrospect, for these two editors, it was a year of achievement and enjoyment. Joel Bloch's sparkling reporting and candid comments animated the Bulldog Barks' sports page. Vicki Gutin was named Miss Teenage Cincinnati. Bonnie Lerner, class treasurer for the past three years, established an admirable record in student leadership. Irv Freilich, president of Honor Society, set a worthy example of citizenship in his years at Woodward. Mike Streff, Woodward's most able artist, demonstrated his ability in all of Woodward's publications. Thus, these seniors, along with many others, led the senior class from aspiration to achievement.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Mr. Ruley, adviser; Jesse Reed, vice-president; Doug Hammond, president; Bonnie Lerner, treasurer and secretary.

Perpetuating the Woodward tradition, the Class of 1967 held the annual Senior Popularity Poll. Choosing from their own ranks, the seniors voted in nine categories. These categories included most studious, most athletic, most talkative, most talented, best all around, best school citizen, most likely to succeed, and wittiest. The voting ballots were collected and tabulated by the annual staff, and the winners were announced on the public address and in the Bulldog Barks. To the winners, the contest bestowed recognition. However, to the many other students who had hoped for this recognition, the poll rendered disappointment. The poll is based on merit although popularity, as the name of the poll itself indicates, is often the key factor in the voting.

MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED:
Susan Strong and Marty Ackerman

WITTIEST:
Mary Ingalsbe and Louis Heldman

MOST TALKATIVE:
Jon Bruno and Leatrice Taylor

FRIENDLIEST:
Danny Lewis and Margaret Bissell

BEST ALL AROUND:
Doug Hammond and Vicki Foley

MOST ATHLETIC:
Maxine Watkins and Tom Malone

MOST TALENTED:

BEST SCHOOL CITIZENS:

Advertising

We, of the Annual staff and especially the advertising section, would like to extend our gratitude to the individuals, businesses, and classes that purchased ads for supporting our yearbook. Without this invaluable support the WOODWARD TREASURES could not have been published. We urge the students to patronize these establishments in order to extend the fable of prosperity and good will in and around Woodward and Cincinnati.

THE WOODWARD HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNAL ASSOCIATION

As is Woodward High School, your Alumnal Association is the oldest organization of its kind west of the Allegheny Mountains. It is also one of the largest and most active high school alumnal associations in the entire nation. In addition, its members have included such personages as a President of the United States, Senators, Congressmen, Admirals, Generals, Educators, professional people, and many others who have distinguished themselves locally, nationally, and internationally. Truly, the graduates of Woodward High School have something to be proud of, something that the majority of high school graduates and even some college graduates don't have—heritage, a heritage that is embodied in and perpetuated by the Alumnal Association.

The Alumnal Association continually strives to enhance this heritage. This is accomplished in many ways. The most recent is through the Elsa and Cliff Heisel Medal of Merit Award. This medal is awarded on a strictly academic basis to the student who attains the highest four-year academic record. This medal was awarded for the first time to a student in the 1962 Graduating Class. Annual Reunions are held each year the closest Saturday to March 8th, William Woodward's birthday.

Dear Reader:

Woodward may be characterized by the theme of the 1967 Treasures: Woodward's Fable: A Tale of Aspiration, Action, and Achievement. By employing photographs, artwork, and copy, the 1967 Treasures staff has endeavored to impart meaning and depth to this statement.

Everyone attending Woodward, whether as a student, a teacher, or an administrator, aspires toward some goal. Though the goals may differ, everyone is seeking a particular grail. A student aspires to be accepted by Harvard; a teacher hopes to reach a slow student; an administrator strives to modernize school conditions. Although most cannot completely accomplish their goals, the important thing is the effort. The constant maelstrom of activity in and around Woodward reflects this effort. Everyone is working to fulfill the formula of aspiration, action, and achievement. Because of Woodward's cherished tradition, the tale of achievement at Woodward has become almost a fable.

Total dedication and long hours of work, very often extending into the late hours of the night, were necessary for the staff to coordinate their individual talents and ideas to produce the 1967 Woodward Treasures. The staff began to have weekly meetings early last spring to decide upon basic styles and a theme. Through attendance at a seminar at Xavier University and a weeklong seminar at Woodward last summer, the staff learned the basic principles of designing layouts and writing copy. The necessity of working together and sharing ideas created the flexibility and mutual respect required to produce a yearbook.

I offer my sincere appreciation to all those members of the administration and faculty whose patient cooperation contributed inestimably to the success of this book. Special thanks are extended to Mr. Jack Luhrman, our talented adviser, Mr. Carl Vorpe, the representative from American Yearbook Company, and to Mr. Pat McKenrick, who possesses the unique ability to capture a wisp of life in a candid photograph.
